

Case Study: Migraines

Jess's Story

I have always had migraine headaches as a preteen. My exam showed my curve in my neck is not there, so we have been working on restoring my space between my vertebra in my neck as well as getting back my curve in my neck.

The treatments and adjustments have made my quality of life better. I am able to go to planned family functions more often instead of canceling due to a migraine. I will always need chiropractic in my life due to my condition. So, I am glad I am part of a clinic that treats you like family.

Doctor's Story

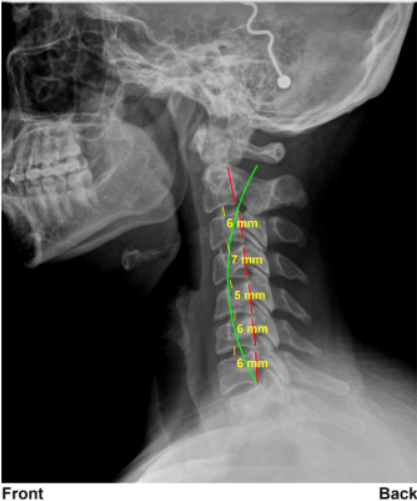

Upon presenting the office Jess told me about her severe debilitating migraine that she has suffered with for a decade plus. The severity of her migraine were rated 8-10/10 on a pain scale and caused her to have to skip work, family functions and her personal life was suffering.

By focusing our efforts on restoring a normal structure to her neck curvature, we have been able to greatly cut the severity and frequency of her headaches. Jess is able to work much more consistently and when she does get a migraine, from fluctuating atmospheric pressure, they no longer are totally debilitating, and she is able to still carry on with her normal day to day life. We have been able to greatly change the course for Jessica's future with her migraine, they now are very manageable for her.
